VENEZUELA. TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:-

A few days ago there appeared in the HERALI a letter about Venezuela and its present government, in the shape of a letter, dated Caracas, June 7, 1874. It is not my intention to show all the errors contained in the communication, but I wish parts it is not, strictly speaking, true. The writes acknowledges that General Guzman Blanco is a man of the noblest qualities, and that he gives himself up entirely to the welfare of his country. racter to commit any bad actions? Is there, in racter to commit any bad actions? Is there, in deed, any reason to suppose that the same mag who only a short time ago wished to retire from the highest position and power with a self-denial hitherto unknown in the history of the South American republics should have the intention to prolong his term and tyrannize over his country? General Bianco, at the head of an honorable and advancing government, is the first to follow all the rules of the constitution and the law; and if he, as the letter says, does not personate the ideal of the people, it is because it has not yet recognized the valuable improvements with which Venezuela has been gifted since the ep-ch when General Bianco could take a leading part in the career of his country. The enemies of General Guzman Bianco themseives admit that the person whose special qualities would enable him to prosperously succeed the present President does not exist! What do they wish, then? To throw the country into a continuance of caimmites and revolutions? Such cannot be the aim of one who calls nimself a son of Venezuela; and it is therefore astonisning that the press, the duty of which is to counsel the minds and quiet the passions of the people, which a person tries to defame his own country. We must not forget that the President is not the only power governing a republic. The so-called violent action against the Catholic Church was an act sanctioned by the Congress of the nations, and the President most decidedly recognizes this sovereign body and honors its resolutions. General Guzman Blanco is as good a Catholic as possibly can be he who claims that an insignificant number of priests and nuns have been deed, any reason to suppose that the same mas church was an act sanctioned by the Congress of the nations, and the President most decidedly recognizes this sovereign body and honors its resolutions. General Guzman Bianco is as good a Catholic as possibly can be he who claims that an insignificant number of priests and nums bave been obliged to give up their inactive mode of living and place themselves on an equal standing with others. The Archishop Guevara remains outside the country because he has declared himself in open enmity against the government. He could have returned to his native country as soon as he would have changed his positics, and General Guzman Bianco would have been the first to give him his hand as a token of friendship. But he, as well as others, prefers to live in foreign countries, trying to appear as a martyr. In Venezuela there is room for everybody who honestly will support the present administration in its work for maintenance of peace and promotion of progress. It would be both langhable and unreasonable to deny the constant progress of everything of late. One must be without perception not to acknowledge the thorough change of the city of Caracas and the highways of the country since the year 1870. Here I do not speak either as a Venezuelan nor as a representative of the government, which I am, but according to letters received from persons living in Caracas, and several of them irom loreigners, in which they all express themselves in so high terms about the advancement of the country in every direction that it must be considered highly honorable to the administration of General Guzman Bianco. If one considers only for a minute the depressed condition to which venezuela was brought in consequence of the weakness and the mismanagement of the weakness and the mismanagement of the considered highly shave how been opened through the country stoles and moral advancement, but this will be enough at present. They will not succeed in their work. No! Venezuela and its present administration. Much more could be added to prove what lack o
